A healthy diet for sailors

Working on a ship is hard, so sailors need a healthy diet. In the past, sailors on long trips didn't eat fresh fruit and many got a disease called scurvy. Today, ships carry fruit, vegetables and frozen food. A good diet on board includes fish, rice, beans, eggs and lots of water. Cooks try to avoid too much fried food and sugar, because sailors don't do much exercise on long trips.

A. Write T (true) or F (false).

1. In the past, sailors ate a lot of fresh fruit. F
2. Scurvy is a disease. T
3. Ships carry frozen food today. T
4. Cooks prepare a lot of fried food. F

B. Answer the questions in English.

1. Why do sailors need a healthy diet?
   → Because working on a ship is hard.
2. Why do cooks avoid sugar and fried food?
   → Because sailors don't do much exercise on long trips.
